Bulk Fill vs System 300

It is undeniable that having soap dispensers in your washroom is imperative for good hand hygiene, but how many of you are still using bulk soap dispensers?

Bulk dispensers refer to those with open-top containers of soap, where the user simply pours the soap into the top. These should be fully cleaned and sanitised before reused, though this is not always the case.

Bulk soap dispensers have multiple benefits:

- A compact and smarter alternative to bar soap and individual bottles
- Cheap to install
- Cheap to refill

However, over recent years there have been a number of studies that highlight the need for us to rethink the way we look at bulk dispensers and if they are the right choice. For example their vulnerability to contamination.

Studies have found the following statistics after washing hands with bulk dispensers:

25%
of dispensers
were excessively contaminated

There was 17
different types
of bacteria
found within the soap

Hands can be left with 25x
more bacteria
after washing
than before

In light of Covid-19 and the heightened awareness of the spread of bacteria, washroom facilities with high footfall are now being equipped with cost-effective and hygienic cartridge dispensing systems.
